Left Bolling Field at 9:15 a.m. - Arrived at Ft. Bragg 10:55 a.m.

Then drove to meet Gen. McNair and witnessed three parachute drops near a bridge across the Wateree River southwest of Camden, S. C.

Studied plan of operations and spent the evening at the Public Relations Headquarters, Hotel Kirkwood, Camden, S. C.

Then moved to the Headquarters, 1st Armored Corps, where did the same thing with Gen. Scott.

From Gen. Scott, went to the Headquarters of the 1st Armored Division, Gen. Magruder.

From Gen. Magruder, motored to the vicinity of Monroe, changed to a "jeep" and followed the operations of the 1st Armored Division around Monroe, being present at their contact with a tank-destroyer unit and 26th Division on Route 74, east of Monroe.

Spent most of the afternoon with Bill Donovan, returning to Hoffman late in the afternoon, where we had dinner. Then motored to 1st Army Headquarters in the field, Gen. Drum, at Tray, N.C., accompanied by Bill Donovan, Senator Austin, Tate, Chauncey Parker, and members of the First Army staff. Returned to Hoffman for the night after a very interesting summary of the First Army situation by Gen. Drum, who was most impressive in his grasp of the maneuver.
Had breakfast at Hoffman, N. C. (took eggs away from Gen. Adler.)

Took off from Marston Field, which was equipped with the new landing mat, Captain Hamilton, in an O-47. Flew all the maneuver area. Saw the Blue Army around Pageland and a strong Blue movement down the east bank of the Catawba River on the left flank of the Red Army. Also saw many other troop movements, all of which was very interesting. Returned to Ft. Bragg, where plane took off for Washington at 10:45 a.m.

Very noticeable lack of air support during tank attack around Pageland. Our plane, carrying Blue colors, was not attacked during the time we were in the air nor did we see any planes to speak of. Smoke from fires built by troops bivouacked in wooded areas clearly marked bivouacs. Many trucks halted on roads did not seek cover. Combat vehicles were frequently bunched in open fields, which presented favorable targets for air attack.

On the first point, General Crowell and Patterson found that General Disque had been greatly circumscribed by the limitations placed upon him by the Staff in the solution of his problems. General Osborn not being present, Mr. McCloy stated Osborn's doubts as to Disque's capacity to handle the job. It was agreed to suspend any action on it until the Secretary could talk to Osborn and the matter of General Disque's qualifications could be determined. As to the second point, the Secretary again opposed building the buildings on the War College, in spite of Judge Patterson's recommendation, but matter was not closed.

12:15 General Surles - conference
12:30 Listened to the President's message, which was as follows:

"To the Congress of the United States:

Yesterday, December 7, 1941—a date which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the empire of Japan.

The United States was at peace with that nation and, at the solicitation of Japan, was still in conversation with its government and its Emperor looking toward the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. Indeed, one hour after Japanese air squadrons had commenced bombing in Oahu, the Japanese ambassador to the United States and his colleague delivered to the Secretary of State a formal reply to a recent American message. While this reply stated that it seemed useless to continue the existing diplomatic negotiations, it contained no threat or hint of war or armed attack.

It will be recorded that the distance of Hawaii from Japan makes it obvious that the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks ago. During the intervening time the Japanese government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace.

The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. Very many American lives have been lost. In addition American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Yesterday the Japanese government also launched an attack against Malyea.

Last night Japanese forces attacked Hong Kong.

Last night Japanese forces attacked Guam.

Last night Japanese forces attacked Wake Island.

This morning the Japanese attacked Midway Island.

Japan has, therefore, undertaken a surprise offensive extending throughout the Pacific area. The facts of yesterday speak for themselves. The people of the United States have already formed their opinions and well understand the implications to the very life and safety of our nation.

As Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense.

Always will we remember the character of the onslaught against us.

No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory.

I believe I interpret the will of the Congress and of the people when I assert that we will not only defend ourselves to the uttermost but will make very certain that this form of treachery shall never endanger us again.
Hostilities exist. There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory and our interests are in grave danger.

With confidence in our armed forces—with the unbounding determination of our people—we will gain the inevitable triumph—so help us God.

I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December seventh, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese empire.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT,"

11:10 Colonel Winslow (G-2) telephoned. (The following report dictated by ASW):

A little after eleven o'clock G-2 phoned me that they had a report from ONI to the effect that the French warships at Martinique gave indications of getting up steam and that new propellers and, in one case, a new wing were being put on planes, all of which actions indicated that they might be making plans for a fun out of the harbor.

On the basis of this news I got hold of Dean Acheson of the State Department and told him the news. He said he would check up on it and call me back. Got hold of Lovett to ask him what could be done air wise, and he recommended bombarding Martinique unless the Navy was ready and able to prevent ships and planes from leaving. Then telephoned General Spaatz to get Air Force in readiness for such action if necessary. A short time later Acheson called me back and said he had found out that the report had come through Naval Intelligence and apparently was a result of our Consul there, and also stated that our Consul had been told that he had been advised that the French ships proposed to make a practice run. Acheson asked me whether I wanted, through diplomatic channels, to have him notify the French officials at Martinique that if the ships left they would get blown up. I told him that that would be my inclination but I thought that I had better communicate with the Chief of Naval Operations. I telephoned Admiral Stark and reached him at home and he told me that he had known about the likelihood of the ships (particularly an aircraft carrier) starting out sometime but that he had not been able to get any statement of policy in respect to it from the White House although he had asked Mr. McIntyre to take it up with the President after his speech tonight. Admiral Stark felt that he could give no authority to send such a message as the State Department suggested, and he also suggested that if a message were sent even indicating our concern or disapproval of the sailing of the ships, it might also serve to expedite their sailing and we would not be in time to intercept them. He also suggested that this might be a device on Germany's part to bring about the transfer of the Vichy fleet to the Germans. His thought was that if we took violent action against the ships it might serve as an excuse for the transfer to be made. I told Admiral Stark that I was going to get in touch with the Caribbean forces to advise them of the possibility of the ship leaving and to prepare to make such plans as could be made to interfere with their departure. About 12:25 Dean Acheson called me back and said that a message had been sent out by the State Department instructing their Consul to proceed to the Governor in Martinique immediately and advise him that this Government might misconstrue the significance of the departure of the ships at this time and to state that this Government very much hoped that it would delay their departure until the situation clarified. I told Acheson of Admiral Stark's thoughts in the matter, but we both agreed that, at least, this action seemed sensible. He said, however, that he would talk to Mr. Atherton about it and let me know the result. He called back a few minutes later to state that the message had already been sent about twenty minutes before and I told him that so far as the War Department was concerned it had our approval.

I instructed Colonel Tate to notify the Chief of Staff's office to instruct General Andrews, Commander of the Caribbean area, to make such dispositions as he thought necessary to enable him to prohibit the departure of the ships if he were so instructed and, in the meantime, to keep the situation under surveillance. Colonel Tate also advised the Chief of Staff's office to instruct General Andrews not to take any action against the ships unless he heard further from Washington.
