Andy Jaffe has been a leader in jazz pedagogy for forty years, having taught at numerous institutions, including Amherst College from 1987-1999. His numerous original compositions and arrangements are written for a wide range of instrumental ensembles and vocal ensembles, from piano solos and duos to works for Jazz Orchestra.

Marty Jaffe is known for his deep sense of groove, lyricism, rich sound, and sensitivity. As a bassist, composer, and improviser, his musical roots are in the jazz tradition. However, he also has a deep background in classical and Brazilian music. His versatility has helped him become one of New York City's most in-demand bassists.
