Can We Survive Climate Change?

Lessons from the Global Dust Bowl of the 1930s

4:30 p.m.
Thursday, April 12
Paino Lecture Hall

Professor Hannah Holleman, 2018 Lazerowitz Lecturer and assistant professor of sociology and environmental studies at Amherst, reinterprets the Dust Bowl on the U.S. southern Plains and asks what important lessons we can learn from this era for international environmental politics and policy today. Her book, Dust Bowls of Empire, is expected from Yale University Press later this year.

This event is made possible by the Max and Etta Lazerowitz Lectureship Fund.
Photograph by Arthur Rothstein (Cimarron County, Oklahoma 1936).